Flour Use To Be Cut 25 Percent

GOVERNMENT IN MOVE TO BOOST WHEAT EXPORTS

Bakers Predict Black Market In Bread If New Program Goes Into Effect

WASHINGTON, April 9—The government prepared to bolster its lagging wheat conservation program today with an order for a 25 per cent cut in domestic consumption of flour.

The order was drafted by the agriculture department as a means of saving some 1,000,000 more tons of wheat for starvation areas abroad during the next three months. It would require millers to cut monthly deliveries of flour to domestic consumers by one-fourth.

Some 50 representatives of the baking and milling industries were summoned here today to discuss new conservation steps.

An agriculture department official said it was not likely that the session would produce a plan "more satisfactory" than the one already drafted. In this case, he said, the department will order its program into effect immediately.

Program Fails

The official said new measures were necessary because it was not evident the "United States" could not meet its foreign commitments through the voluntary conservation measures outlined by President Truman's famine emergency committee. The committee has asked Americans to reduce their consumption of wheat and wheat products by 40 per cent and of fats and oils by 20 per cent.

"The exceedingly short supply of wheat necessitates the department taking exceptional emergency action," the official said. "In recent months the government has sponsored many programs—some voluntary and some not—but these have failed to achieve the desired results."

To Limit Deliveries

The department's order, it was said, would require millers to limit their monthly deliveries of flour to bakers and other domestic consumers to 75 per cent of deliveries in the corresponding month of 1945.

This official conceded that bread production would drop sharply if bakers decide to absorb the 25 percent cut in flour by reducing production of low-priced goods.

Bread To Disappear

"This would mean that bread would disappear in large quantity from market shelves while cakes, cookies and sweet rolls either remained at, or even exceeded, present levels of production," he said. "This would come about simply because the bakers' profit margin on cakes, cookies and such is higher."

John T. McCarthy, president of the American Baking association, warned that any such plan "can mean only a black market for bread." In many areas, he said, (Continued on Page Two)

Army Teams To Watch Japanese Voting In First General Election

TOKYO, April 9—Teams of U. S. Army poll-watchers were established by Gen. Douglas MacArthur today to prevent bribery, vote thefts and coercion in Wednesday's Japanese general election.

The supreme commander's decision to send American military squads to the polling places was part of his policy to assure a "free and untrammelled expression" of the Japanese people's will for the first time in many years.

The poll-watching teams were warned by headquarters, however, that "the charge that this election is being conducted under the threat of Yankee bayonets must not be permitted to arise."

Orders to the teams instructed them to watch particularly for "police interference with campaign activity, efforts of landlords and employers to exert economic power to influence voters, efforts of political machines to bribe voters, excessive campaign expenditures and dishonest tabulations of votes."

MacArthur's action followed, but was not caused by, yesterday's disorders, when premier Baron Kijuro Shidehara was mauled when he attempted to walk out of a conference with Japanese popular front leaders.

The Communists, angered by Shidehara's refusal to answer the present government was "the worst government" the Japanese had ever had. The statement charged present government officials were "a congregation of robbers, thieves, swindlers and usurpers."

MacArthur told the American observers to remember that the election was a Japanese project, under Japanese law.

HOUSE CONTROL PRIZE AS 1946 PRIMARIES OPEN

Illinois Votes First; GOP Conceded Chance To Win Now And In 1948

WASHINGTON, April 9—The 1946 primary season opens today preliminary to off-year general elections in which the greatest prize is control of the house of representatives.

Today's primary polling will be in Illinois where the state's congressional delegation is divided, 11 Democrats and 15 Republicans. Voters will nominate candidates for those seats. There is no gubernatorial nor senatorial contest in Illinois this year.

No other primaries are scheduled until May when they will take place in Alabama, Florida, Indiana, North Carolina, Ohio, Oregon and Pennsylvania.

The general elections take place on Nov. 5, except in Maine where voting will be on Sept. 9. There will be contests for 35 senate seats, 34 governorships and all 435 seats in the house of representatives.

The primary season opens with thunder on the left from farm and labor leaders who are playing with the idea of forming a third party. That was a job undertaken unsuccessfully by the late Theodore Roosevelt in 1912 and the late Robert M. La Follette in 1924. But even unsuccessful third parties can exercise significant power in close elections.

Therefore Washington will observe with interest developments from the Chicago meeting which was revealed yesterday. A provisional national committee has been established headed by A. Philip Randolph, Negro president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters (AFL). James Patton, head of the radical National Farmer's Union, also was a sponsor of the Chicago meeting but said he personally did not favor formation of a third party "at this time."

Of the 35 senate seats up this year, Republicans now hold 12. They must retain those and gain (Continued on Page Two)

ARMED FORCES MERGER PLAN IS RECOMMENDED

WASHINGTON, April 9—A senate military affairs subcommittee today recommended unification of the armed forces under a civilian "secretary of common defense."

The secretary, to be a civilian appointed by the president, would be a member of the cabinet.

Within the department of common defense there would be a secretary for the Army, a secretary for the Navy, and a secretary for the air force. They, too, would be civilians appointed by the President, but would not be cabinet members.

The plan was submitted by a subcommittee headed by Sen. Elbert Thomas, D. Utah, which has studied the problem for months.

Strikes In Ohio Cities Are Settled

Akron Transportation Back To Normal; Cincinnati Power Walkout Off

By United Press
Public transportation was restored in Akron, O., today, and a threatened power strike in Cincinnati was averted. But nearly 688,000 workers remained idle in strikes and shutdowns across the nation.

The major labor developments: 1. AFL machinists and CIO transport workers ended their eight-day strike against the Akron Transportation Company and accepted a 12-cent hourly pay increase.

2. The Cincinnati Gas and Electric Company and the AFL Electrical Workers Union agreed on a 17-cent hourly wage increase, and a power strike, voted by union members 30 days ago was called off.

3. An emergency fact-finding panel closed its hearings on the dispute between 130 Class I railroads and two brotherhoods representing 15 per cent of the nation's railroad workers.

4. Wage negotiations continued in the week-old soft coal strike, and the American Iron and Steel Institute predicted that the shutdown would cut steel production 185,700 tons this week.

5. The national wage stabilization board ruled that only 10 cents of an 18-cent hourly wage boost granted Detroit dairy workers could be used by the companies (Continued on Page Two)

Army Reported Willing To Try Continuing Law But Holding Up Induction

WASHINGTON, April 9—The Army was reported willing today to accept a compromise which would keep the draft law on the books but suspend inductions long enough to see if volunteer recruiting would work.

The report, which would provide an election-jittery congress a way out of its draft dilemma, came as both house and senate military committees were scheduled to vote on whether to extend selective service beyond May 15.

Army willingness to accept the compromise was disclosed by members of the house committee shortly after Rep. Carl Wilson, D. Ga., introduced a bill to set up a $3,000,000 recruiting campaign and suspend inductions six months to give it a chance to work.

Committee members said the Army wanted to keep the draft act on the books but would be willing to accept a moratorium (Continued on Page Two)

Churchill Asked FDR To Send Japan Warning; Marshall, Stark Recalled

WASHINGTON, April 9—Adm. Harold R. Stark, former chief of naval operations, said today that to the best of his knowledge he did not talk to the late President Roosevelt on the eve of the Pearl Harbor attack.

Stark, testifying before the Pearl Harbor committee in a resumption of public hearings into the December 7, 1941 naval disaster, said he believed he would remember it if such a conversation had taken place.

He was re-called to the witness stand for questioning about the events of the evening of December 6, 1941 because of other testimony that Mr. Roosevelt tried to reach Stark that night by telephone.

The committee also recalled Gen. George C. Marshall, former Army chief of staff, to question him again about his activities and whereabouts the night before Pearl Harbor.

Meanwhile, it made public correspondence and communications disclosing that nearly 10 months before the attack on Hawaii, the British asked this country to join in warning Japan that an attack on Singapore would mean war.

The documents included a personal plea from Prime Minister Winston Churchill to the late President Roosevelt to do anything he could to "instill in Japan anxiety as to a double war" with Britain and the United States.

VETERAN WAKES UP VILLAGE AT COST OF $50

TOLEDO, O., April 9—It cost a veteran $50 because he wanted to do something about the boredom he said prevailed in Whitehouse village.

Washington I. McGilvery said "things never happen in Whitehouse."

So, he raced his automobile through the village and tossed three home-made "Molotov Cocktails" (gasoline filled bottles with lighted wicks) around.

The gasoline made flames six feet high and 20 feet around but buildings and passersby were not injured.

George Pershing, Westerville township justice of the peace, fined McGilvery $50 for reckless driving.

Poland Charges Franco Spain Threat To Peace As Meetings Resume

QUIET ON IRAN DEMAND

Gromyko Refers Questioners To UN Officials; Mild Session Expected

NEW YORK, April 9—Soviet Ambassador Andrei A. Gromyko today announced the end of his 13-day boycott of the United Nations security council a few hours after Poland charged that the "existence and activities" of Franco Spain were a threat to world peace.

Gromyko's simple "I shall go" to this afternoon's council meeting was in sharp contrast to his dramatic walkout from the council chamber on March 27.

At the same time Gromyko hinted he would not press at once his demand that the council drop the Iranian case from its agenda in view of the new Soviet-Iranian agreement.

Gromyko referred reporters to the president of the security council when asked if he would bring up his latest Iranian demand at today's meeting. The president is in charge of the agenda.

Council President Dr. Quo Tai-Chi and Secretary General Trygve Lie purposely omitted the Russian demand from today's provisional agenda, after consultation with other members of the council.

Gromyko was in a jovial mood as he left his hotel early today to work for a few hours at the Soviet consulate before the council meeting. He appeared pleased to be able to announce to reporters who have camped on his doorstep during his two weeks of self-imposed exile that he is returning to the council table.

Earlier Polish Ambassador Oscar Lange officially notified Lie that he would formally ask in the next few days that Poland's charges against Franco Spain be placed on the council's agenda. His letter to Lie was dated yesterday and was made public by Lie's office.

The prospects for today's council meeting were for relatively mild discussion of proposed rules of procedure for the council.

RUSSIANS EASE DEMANDS MADE ON ROMANIANS

LONDON, April 9—A sweeping revision of Russian reparations demands against the Balkans was reported today concurrent with arrangements for a big four peace conference in Paris late this month.

Bucharest reported that Russia had granted Romania a number of concessions easing the provisions of that country's armistice terms and enabling the Romanians to get their war-staggered economy on a more stable basis.

Budapest announced a Hungarian-Soviet agreement covering Hungary's reparations installment for 1946. The Hungarians attested their willingness to cover war damages of their making insofar as the inflation-ridden country is able.

GOP JOINS IN FIGHT AGAINST PREFAB MARKET

WASHINGTON, April 9—Senate Republicans lined up today for an attempt to defeat an administration proposal that the government guarantee a market for prefabricated houses.

There were indications that some southern Democrats might join the GOP drive and administration senators said privately they feared it would succeed.

The contest centered on a provision of the pending emergency veterans housing bill which would provide a market for up to 200,000 ready-built houses. Housing Expediter Wilson W. Wyatt said it was necessary to encourage all-out production in this new field.

CYCLIST HURT AT BELL SIDING

Springfield Navy Veteran Suffers Broken Wrists In Crash With Truck

Charles Thompson, 26, Springfield, suffered fractures to both his wrists in a three-vehicle traffic accident at 8 a. m. Tuesday on U. S. Route 23, at the C. and O. overpass at Bell Siding, three miles north of Circleville.

Thompson was riding a motorcycle south and was trailing two trucks. One truck, operated by Lowell Stratton, 26, Waldo, halted at the overpass while the driver calculated the clearance. The second truck, driven by Kenneth Sage, 23, Sandusky, struck the rear of the Stratton truck. A second or two afterward Thompson's motorcycle crashed against the rear of the Sage truck.

According to reports Thompson's cycle went under the bed of the truck and he threw up his hands to avoid hitting his head on the truck. The impact broke his wrists.

After being given first aid by Dr. E. S. Shane, Thompson was removed in Defenbaugh's ambulance to White Cross hospital at Columbus.

Ill luck apparently followed Thompson on his motorcycle trip. Released from the Navy only a short time, his wife and small child were burned to death in a fire in the Thompson home about a month ago at Springfield.

The highway accident was investigated by State Highway Patrolman L. G. Ridenour. No arrests were made.

CINCINNATI HOME BREW MAKER IS FINED $100

CINCINNATI, April 9—The first arrest for home-brewing since prohibition days in Cincinnati today had resulted in the conviction of William Anderson on a charge of selling liquor without a license.

He was fined $100 and costs after detectives and state liquor agents said they seized 22 quarts of home brew, a copper, crocks and hose in a week-end raid on Anderson's home here.

Quintuplet Calves Leave Town House To Parade Through Fairbury Streets

FAIRBURY, Neb., April 9—Quintuplet calves, only group of their kind known to animal husbandry, were exhibited for the first time today since their birth four and a half months ago.

The bovines—named United States, Russia, England, China, and France—weighed less than 200 pounds at birth. Today they aggregated approximately 1,000 pounds as they pranced from their electrically heated town house and paraded through downtown Fairbury. The parade was arranged by the Chamber of Commerce and had the aspect of a typical Nebraska county fair.

Parade costumes consisted of red halters and white blankets lettered in red with their names. France is the only heifer of the group. Two of the calves are white-faces, one is red and two are a mixture of red and white.

The five were born Nov. 20, 1945, of a grade Shorthorn cow and a non-registered Hereford bull. The mother, an ordinary milk cow, was owned by Leo Schmoldt, a farmer who lives five miles northeast of Fairbury.

Dr. L. J. Smith, a veterinarian, took complete charge of the calves. For two weeks Smith and Schmoldt and their wives gave the calves 24-hours-a-day supervision in a brooder house. At the end of six weeks Smith moved them to Fairbury and installed them in a "town house."

The quintuplets electrically heated home was equipped with individual stalls and running water. Adjacent to the stalls was a rumple room where the calves got their exercise.

They developed such a liking for one another that separation into stalls was the signal for a tremendous bawling that continued for hours.

Smith nursed the calves carefully, and fed them a specially developed vitamin-enriched formula. The basic food was oatmeal, mixed feed, and prairie hay.

The calves, individually no different from thousands of ordinary young bovines, attracted attention from many parts of the world. Owner Schmoldt and Veterinarian Smith received letters from as far away as New Zealand asking about the blood lines, feed formula, and circumstances of breeding and birth. Schmoldt and Smith answered the queries on Chamber of Commerce stationery lettered: "Friendly Fairbury, home of the quintuplet calves."

Washington I. McGilvery said "things never happen in Whitehouse."

So, he raced his automobile through the village and tossed three home-made "Molotov Cocktails" (gasoline filled bottles with lighted wicks) around.

The gasoline made flames six feet high and 20 feet around but buildings and passersby were not injured.

George Pershing, Westerville township justice of the peace, fined McGilvery $50 for reckless driving.

URGES MORE SECURITY

WASHINGTON, April 9—Secretary of Labor Lewis B. Schwellenbach today urged congress to broaden the social security law to include some 20,000,000 unprotected persons and provide sharp increase in old age insurance benefits.

The calves, individually no different from thousands of ordinary young bovines, attracted attention from many parts of the world. Owner Schmidt and Veterinarian Smith received letters from as far away as New Zealand asking about the blood lines, feed formula, and circumstances of breeding and birth. Schmidt and Smith answered the queries on Chamber of Commerce stationery lettered: "Friendly Fairbury, home of the quintuplet calves."

Final Rites For Donahey On Thursday

COLUMBUS, April 9—Funeral services for former Governor and U. S. Senator Vic Donahey, 72, will be held at 2 p. m. Thursday at New Philadelphia, O.

Donahey, the first three-time governor of Ohio, died yesterday at a Columbus hospital after a six-day illness. Donahey was the second former governor to die within nine days. Former Governor Martin L. Davey died March 31 at Kent.

Donahey was governor from 1923 to 1929 and senator from 1935 to 1940.

The first person ever to serve three consecutive terms as governor of Ohio, Donahey occupied a unique niche in Ohio politics.

Politicians called him "miracle man," because of his campaign methods, contempt for party organization and his ability to win office on the strength of his personal following.

Donahey was born in Westchester, Tuscarawas county, on July 7, 1873. His only formal education was received in the lower grades of public schools.

He was an obscure printer in Tuscarawas county when he entered politics and rose rapidly until he was elected state auditor in 1912.

It was in that position, where he kept a close watch on the state treasury, that he gained the nickname of "Honest Vic". A typical incident was his rejection of an item of 35 cents for a baked potato placed on a state official's expense account.

He was re-elected as auditor in 1916, and four years later was the choice for the Democratic nomination for governor. Despite his personal popularity, he was caught in the Harding landslide and lost (Continued on Page Two)

FROST MAY HIT AREA TONIGHT; COOLNESS STAYS

Possibility of a heavy frost Tuesday night loomed as a threat to fruit orchards in the Circleville area. The U. S. Weather Bureau predicted that the frost will strike in central and northern Ohio.

Pickaway County Farm Bureau said that the fruit crop in this area will be in serious danger in the event of a heavy frost.

It is possible, according to the weatherman, that the mercury will fall to the 30 degree mark during the night. Clear skies, of course, help frost to become killing to fruit. Cloudy skies, fog, or wind, all help to minimize the danger.

While peach trees are shedding their blossoms and are consequently a little safer than they were a few days ago, a very heavy frost might substantially curtail their yield.

Most apple trees have not yet arrived at the danger point because they still are in the pre-pink and have not blossomed.

The official weather report is continued cool Tuesday night and Wednesday.

Poland Charges Franco Spain Threat To Peace As Meetings Resume

QUIET ON IRAN DEMAND

Gromyko Refers Questioners To UN Officials; Mild Session Expected

NEW YORK, April 9—Soviet Ambassador Andrei A. Gromyko today announced the end of his 13-day boycott of the United Nations security council a few hours after Poland charged that the "existence and activities" of Franco Spain were a threat to world peace.

Gromyko's simple "I shall go" to this afternoon's council meeting was in sharp contrast to his dramatic walkout from the council chamber on March 27.

At the same time Gromyko hinted he would not press at once his demand that the council drop the Iranian case from its agenda in view of the new Soviet-Iranian agreement.

Gromyko referred reporters to the president of the security council when asked if he would bring up his latest Iranian demand at today's meeting. The president is in charge of the agenda.

Council President Dr. Quo Tai-Chi and Secretary General Trygve Lie purposely omitted the Russian demand from today's provisional agenda, after consultation with other members of the council.

Gromyko was in a jovial mood as he left his hotel early today to work for a few hours at the Soviet consulate before the council meeting. He appeared pleased to be able to announce to reporters who have camped on his doorstep during his two weeks of self-imposed exile that he is returning to the council table.

Earlier Polish Ambassador Oscar Lange officially notified Lie that he would formally ask in the next few days that Poland's charges against Franco Spain be placed on the council's agenda. His letter to Lie was dated yesterday and was made public by Lie's office.

The prospects for today's council meeting were for relatively mild discussion of proposed rules of procedure for the council.

RUSSIANS EASE DEMANDS MADE ON ROMANIANS

LONDON, April 9—A sweeping revision of Russian reparations demands against the Balkans was reported today concurrent with arrangements for a big four peace conference in Paris late this month.

Bucharest reported that Russia had granted Romania a number of concessions easing the provisions of that country's armistice terms and enabling the Romanians to get their war-staggered economy on a more stable basis.

Budapest announced a Hungarian-Soviet agreement covering Hungary's reparations installment for 1946. The Hungarians attested their willingness to cover war damages of their making insofar as the inflation-ridden country is able.

GOP JOINS IN FIGHT AGAINST PREFAB MARKET

WASHINGTON, April 9—Senate Republicans lined up today for an attempt to defeat an administration proposal that the government guarantee a market for prefabricated houses.

There were indications that some southern Democrats might join the GOP drive and administration senators said privately they feared it would succeed.

The contest centered on a provision of the pending emergency veterans housing bill which would provide a market for up to 200,000 ready-built houses. Housing Expediter Wilson W. Wyatt said it was necessary to encourage all-out production in this new field.

HOUSE CONTROL PRIZE AS 1946 PRIMARIES OPEN

10 more to win control of the senate. Political observers agree there is small chance the Republicans will win control of the senate this year.

The Republicans must win 27 more seats in the house to obtain 218 members which would be a bare majority of one. The contest for control of the house will be a horse race and chances appear to be about even. If the Republicans can win control with a satisfactory working majority—say an aggregate of 230 to 235 seats—there will be reason to give odds that the G.O.P. will elect a president in 1948.

Some loss of Democratic seats is to be expected in an off year and without the political appeal of the late Franklin D. Roosevelt playing over the voters. There is a political saying that the party which wins control of the house in an off year will win the White House two years later. Experience proves the prediction substantially sound.

CAFE OWNER BOUND OVER ON CHARGES OF ASSAULT

Ferry Lamaster, 52, co-owner of the White Swan restaurant, West Main street, arrested Monday afternoon on a charge of assault with intent to kill, waived preliminary hearing when arraigned before Justice of the Peace Harold O. Eveland. Lamaster was bound to the Pickaway county grand jury and was released under $500 bond.

The charge against Lamaster was filed by William Montgomery, who claims that Lamaster assaulted his son, David Montgomery, 19, Renick avenue, the night of April 2.

METER TAMPERING CHARGED

Arrested Monday afternoon charged with tampering with a parking meter in front of the city building, Robert Hinton, 19, freight checker, Tarlton, was released under $10 bond. When he failed to appear at 10 a. m. Tuesday in the court of Mayor Ben H. Gordon the bond was declared forfeited.

to the Republican candidate, former mayor Harry L. Davis of Cleveland.

He retired to private life, but in 1922 again announced his candidacy despite hopes of Democratic "bosses" that his defeat had finished his political career.

He won both the nomination and the election handily, but when he took office Jan. 8, 1923, found his administration blocked by an overwhelmingly Republican legislature.

In retaliation, he vetoed 76 bills passed by the legislature, setting a new high record in that regard. The Republican-dominated Senate then refused to confirm his appointments to state commissions and boards.

He left the governor's office with the words, "My chief concern is to leave with a clean record and the respect of the people of Ohio, who have honored me with their confidence and respect."

Donahey assumed the presidency of the Motorists' Mutual Insurance Co. of Columbus and withdrew from politics until 1934, when he announced his candidacy for U. S. Senator.

In the primary he defeated Governor George White and the national administration's candidate, Congressman Charles West of Granville. He won the election easily over the incumbent senator Simeon D. Fess of Yellow Springs.

He campaigned on a promise to go to Washington, keep his mouth shut, and vote independently. He kept those promises to the letter, making no speeches on the floor and often voting in opposition to the Roosevelt administration.

At the age of 23 he married Edith Sterling Harvey of Dover, O. Of this marriage, 12 children were born, of whom 10 are now living. A daughter, Margaret, is the wife of Ohio's present Democratic senator, James W. Huffman.

The committee slashed a requested $19,284,778 for the state department's international information service and cultural relations program to $10,000,000 despite a plea by Secretary James F. Byrnes that it was important to future understanding between nations.

It likewise turned a deaf ear to Wallace's plea for bigger appropriations which, he said, were needed by his department to help American business in achieving the goal of full production and employment.

McCarthy explained that in many sections, bakery production is 50 per cent again as great as it was a year ago, so that a reduction to 75 per cent of 1945 deliveries of flour would mean slashing present production in half.

He said bakers would have no objection to measures made necessary by a genuine shortage of grain.

as the basis for price relief. It was the first case not to receive complete approval by the national board.

For the first time in eight days Akron residents could ride to work by bus and trolley. The CIO transport workers union accepted the 12-cent wage increase after nearly 36 hours of almost continuous negotiations with the company. The AFL machinists union followed suit a few hours later. Both unions originally had demanded 32 cents.

The agreement in the Cincinnati utilities dispute was worked out with the aid of the U. S. conciliation service. In addition to the 17-cent hourly increase it provides union dues checkoff. The agreement is subject to approval by the Cincinnati local union.

The railroad fact-finding panel heard Ray T. Miller, attorney for the brotherhoods of railway trainmen and locomotive engineers, warn that the 16-cent hourly pay boost granted last week to 18 other railroad unions would not be satisfactory to the trainmen and engineers.

Miller said the unions demanded a 25 per cent pay increase and rules changes. President Truman is expected to announce the panel's decision by April 20.

Richard Sprague, 21, Columbus, failed to appear Monday night in the court of Mayor Ben H. Gordon to answer to a reckless driving charge and his $10 bond was declared forfeited. Sprague had been arrested early Sunday in North Court street by Patrolmen Carl Radcliff and Turney Ross.

She also asks for alimony and the custody of a four-year-old daughter, Linda Lee.

Mrs. Frances E. Smith accuses Alfred R. Smith of gross neglect of duty and extreme cruelty. Mrs. Smith also asks for alimony and the custody of four minor children, Ariene, six, Mary, five, Louise four and 19-month-old Karen. Judge Emmett L. If the Republicans can win control with a satisfactory working majority—say an aggregate of 230 to 235 seats—there will be reason to give odds that the G.O.P. will elect a president in 1948.

Some loss of Democratic seats is to be expected in an off year and without the political appeal of the late Franklin D. Roosevelt playing over the voters. There is a political saying that the party which wins control of the house in an off year will win the White House two years later. Experience proves the prediction substantially sound.

to the Republican candidate, former mayor Harry L. Davis of Cleveland.

He retired to private life, but in 1922 again announced his candidacy despite hopes of Democratic "bosses" that his defeat had finished his political career.

He won both the nomination and the election handily, but when he took office Jan. 8, 1923, found his administration blocked by an overwhelmingly Republican legislature.

In retaliation, he vetoed 76 bills passed by the legislature, setting a new high record in that regard. The Republican-dominated Senate then refused to confirm his appointments to state commissions and boards.

He left the governor's office with the words, "My chief concern is to leave with a clean record and the respect of the people of Ohio, who have honored me with their confidence and respect."

Donahey assumed the presidency of the Motorists' Mutual Insurance Co. of Columbus and withdrew from politics until 1934, when he announced his candidacy for U. S. Senator.

In the primary he defeated Governor George White and the national administration's candidate, Congressman Charles West of Granville. He won the election easily over the incumbent senator Simeon D. Fess of Yellow Springs.

He campaigned on a promise to go to Washington, keep his mouth shut, and vote independently. He kept those promises to the letter, making no speeches on the floor and often voting in opposition to the Roosevelt administration.

At the age of 23 he married Edith Sterling Harvey of Dover, O. Of this marriage, 12 children were born, of whom 10 are now living. A daughter, Margaret, is the wife of Ohio's present Democratic senator, James W. Huffman.

The committee slashed a requested $18,284,778 for the state department's international information service and cultural relations program to $10,000,000 despite a plea by Secretary James F. Byrnes that it was important to future understanding between nations.

It likewise turned a deaf ear to Wallace's plea for bigger appropriations which, he said, were needed by his department to help American business in achieving the goal of full production and employment.

as the basis for price relief. It was the first case not to receive complete approval by the national board.

For the first time in eight days Akron residents could ride to work by bus and trolley. The CIO transport workers union accepted the 12-cent wage increase after nearly 36 hours of almost continuous negotiations with the company.

The AFL machinists union followed suit a few hours later. Both unions originally had demanded 32 cents.

The agreement in the Cincinnati utilities dispute was worked out with the aid of the U. S. conciliation service. In addition to the 17-cent hourly increase it provides union dues checkoff. The agreement is subject to approval by the Cincinnati local union.

The railroad fact-finding panel heard Ray T. Miller, attorney for the brotherhoods of railway trainmen and locomotive engineers, warn that the 16-cent hourly pay boost granted last week to 18 other railroad unions would not be satisfactory to the trainmen and engineers.

Miller said the unions demanded a 25 per cent pay increase and rules changes. President Truman is expected to announce the panel's decision by April 20.

WASHINGTON, April 9—Fourteen editors and publishers of leading American newspapers and magazines leave today on a tour of German and Austrian cities to study American military government at the invitation of Secretary of War Robert P. ## FINAL 'FAMILY NIGHT' MEETING ON WEDNESDAY

Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. in the First United Brethren Church, East Main street, the closing service of a series of Lenten "Family Night" meetings will be held in the sanctuary.

"The Blind Beggar of Jerusalem," a religious, sound, motion picture will be shown. In announcing this program feature, the Rev. Carl L. Wilson, pastor, says: "This is a scriptural film taken from the ninth chapter of St. John. Outside the gates of the temple sat a beggar who was blind from birth. He was healed by Jesus. This story gives a vivid presentation of the growing hatred of the temple authorities for the Master. The attempt of the temple priests to force the beggar to deny the miracle and discredit the power of Jesus fails. The beggar is cast out of the temple, and when Jesus hears of it He goes immediately to him. This is a gripping story of tremendous significance that explains why Jesus so vigorously opposed the religious leaders of His people. This picture is shown for one reason only, that the public might see Jesus as He went about doing good in the face of opposition and criticism."

This service will last one hour with the public invited. No admission will be charged.

FINAL 'FAMILY NIGHT' MEETING ON WEDNESDAY

Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. in the First United Brethren Church, East Main street, the closing service of a series of Lenten "Family Night" meetings will be held in the sanctuary.

"The Blind Beggar of Jerusalem," a religious, sound, motion picture will be shown. In announcing this program feature, the Rev. Carl L. Wilson, pastor, says: "This is a scriptural film taken from the ninth chapter of St. John. Outside the gates of the temple sat a beggar who was blind from birth. He was healed by Jesus. This story gives a vivid presentation of the growing hatred of the temple authorities for the Master. The attempt of the temple priests to force the beggar to deny the miracle and discredit the power of Jesus fails. The beggar is cast out of the temple, and when Jesus hears of it He goes immediately to him. This is a gripping story of tremendous significance that explains why Jesus so vigorously opposed the religious leaders of His people. This picture is shown for one reason only, that the public might see Jesus as He went about doing good in the face of opposition and criticism."

This service will last one hour with the public invited. No admission will be charged.

500 RAILROAD WORKERS IDLED AT COLUMBUS

COLUMBUS, April 9—Four railroads have laid off a total of more than 500 men in Columbus because of the coal strike.

The layoffs came on the roads that haul coal from West Virginia through Columbus to lake ports—the Pennsylvania, the C. & O., the Norfolk and Western and the T. & O. C. (New York Central). The Chesapeake and Ohio took off 110 men in its engine house and car repair departments. Road officials said another 100 train and engine men would be taken off if the strikes were not settled by April 15.

The Norfolk and Western cut 14 train crews and from 50 to 60 other employees. The New York Central laid off 18 road and yard crews and cut its engine house force and car men.

The Pennsylvania dropped 50 firemen, 50 yard and road brakemen, and about 85 shop workers.

FAITH

WITH many voices raised in doubts and fears for the future, it was reassuring to hear what Frank Gervasi, foreign correspondent and Washington editor of Collier's Magazine, said in a public address recently. Instead of doubt and pessimism, he spoke in this fashion.

"There will be no civilization-destroying war, despite the many men of evil heart and evil tongue who are attempting to edge us into one. These prophets of doom are the faithless people who do not believe in the principles of democracy, who are afraid of progress and change. The great masses of people everywhere believe in democracy. The great lack of faith is at the top, among the men who currently have power and won't yield any of it. In this category are the reactionary generals and admirals, and a vast number of majors and colonels who used to be soda jerks. There is a conspiracy in the three great capitals of the world to force the failure of peace. It is in the pattern of faithlessness and old-fashioned power politics that is now being woven about international affairs."

He admits that Russia is grossly unreasonable in her demands, but "so are we and Britain." He finds a clutter of talk about "buffer states, power blocs, unilateral treaties," and so on, that he says became obsolete with the production of the atomic bomb. Russia he regards as "suspicious and frightened, not dangerous but afraid of us."

However this may be, it is well to think such things over calmly.

SAD FLAPJACK STORY

IT'S a bad year for sugar bush farmers.

The early spring, so pleasant for other people in the maple tree country, has ruined the quality of the sap.

Geauga County, in Northeastern Ohio, had great plans for its first Maple Sugar Festival since before the war, but the farmers have had to call it off. The warm weather cut off the flow of early sap, so the trees are bearing only "bud sap," used primarily for curing tobacco. A survey made by Cornell University indicates that syrup from Northern New York State will be very scarce also.

What will happen to the pancake situation next winter, with both maple syrup and sugar for jam rare foods?

ARGENTINA SURPRISE

A surprising development has happened in connection with the first anniversary of President Roosevelt's death, on April 12. A memorial stamp in his honor has been issued by Argentina. President Roosevelt was a steadfast foe of the dominant Argentine fascists, yet after their triumph at the polls the Peron government commemorates him.

Perhaps Peron, despite his victory, does not feel sure of himself, and would like to appease the United States.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, April 9—Everyone is saying the world crisis has passed. UNO is twiddling its thumbs until May 6, judging the Iran issue more or less settled. On its agenda are only two matters of organization. But . . .

Russia is known to be planning a regular army of 6,500,000 men or more after July 1. We are planning an army then of 1,550,000.

Russia is planning an air force of 1,200,000 or more in her army. We are planning an air force of 400,000.

Russia has inaugurated conscription which is to provide 1,500,000 of fresh manpower each year, with two years of service for regulars and five years in her army for specialized services. I have not heard an authoritative estimate of her planes, but we are to have 5,000 for one-third the number of men she contemplates, and if the same ratio of men to planes could be maintained by Russia, she would have 15,000 (she cannot provide herself anywhere near that number). Of her 6,500,000 or more men, fully 5,000,000 are supposed to be her own troops, the other 1,500,000 coming from her satellites.

Is the world crisis over?

If so, why does Russia need such an army and air force, three to five times greater than ours?

In the face of such figures, how can people like Senator Pepper arise and naively accuse the United States of kicking Russia around, or proposing to?

Great Britain has nothing formidable, a scattered army which will be about the size of China's July 1 or shortly thereafter, and China has far more planes than Britain, mostly ours. Britain will have about half our force in her home army, the others being Dominion troops. Measured in world military terms, she will be weaker than ever before in her history. The army expansion program of DeGaulle in France has been defeated by the Communists and France cannot be considered a world force.

Give China 1,000,000; Britain a little over 1,000,000; France around 400,000 and us 1,550,000 (with air) and Russia will have a force greater by 1,500,000 or more, than all the major nations combined. (These figures fill out the Balkans estimates of Soviet strength given you last Friday.)

The estimates of our army are based upon announced factors such as minimum occupation requirements, keeping bases, transportation lines, etc., and lastly—and perhaps least in consideration—maintaining home defenses. They do not contemplate war with anyone. What requirements the Soviet figures are based on, I do not know.

Yet it is evident in these realities the world crisis has not passed, and that the idling in UNO reflects simply the ignoring of problems of world peace greater than Iran. No peace treaties have been concluded for Italy and Austria. The peace for Germany and Asia is unsettled. But even if these diplomatic affairs are eventually adjusted, can there be a world confidence in peace with Russia maintaining such plans?

Peace cannot come unless or until Russia opens up, drops her isolationism, her censorship, and takes her footing on the same basis as other nations of the world. Her tremendous military program, coupled with her secrecy, cannot accomplish any result except world unrest, uncertainty and suspicion. Free inspection of limited armaments on the other hand would establish a justifiable feeling of international security.

MAKE SURE OF IT

GETTING AN entry out of the dummy before its long suit is established is the telling factor in the defense against many a No Trump game. When that can be read as the crux of the situation, it pays to sacrifice your own high cards in order to accomplish the necessary result. Leading a well-positioned king from third-hand position right into the dummy's ace can then be worth much more to you than the single trick you seem to sacrifice thereby. Choosing some smaller card may mean that you throw away your one real opportunity to defeat the contract.

After that funny bidding, West opened the heart 4, which East won with the K. He studied the dummy and decided that the best defense was to try to kill off the club suit—in which he deduced South had some high cards—by removing the diamond A as a re-entree to the dummy. So far, so good. But then he, to achieve this aim, led the diamond 2. That scrapped any possible benefits from his thinking.

South won the low diamond with the Q, while leaving the A intact. He scored the club A, K and Q, then led to the diamond A and cashed two more clubs. Then the spade finesse succeeded, giving him a total of nine tricks and game.

East remorsefully told West he led his small diamond to the second trick in the hope that West had the Q—a monstrous unlikelihood in view of the bidding—and that he had hoped to save his K for a trick-taker later on. If instead of the small diamond, he had led the K to the second trick, he could have knocked out that diamond A before South had a chance to clear out his own high clubs. That was the one thing on which the contract depended—getting the diamond A out of dummy before the declarer led his clubs. Doing it would have held the declarer to eight tricks.

Backache? Maybe Your Shock Absorbers Are Out of Order

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THE human body is intricately and marvelously made, which is, of course, one reason why it may develop so many ailments. From one point of view, its wondrous complexity and specialization of parts simply means that it has a lot of things to get out of kilter.

Suppose, for instance, there is some injury to its "shock absorbers," the little pieces of cartilage which lie between the small bones of the spine and act as cushions to protect against jarring.

These bits of cartilage, called intervertebral disks, are small, and they serve a most useful purpose, but if they are injured you are going to have trouble.

There are certain injuries to the intervertebral disks which, in turn, produce pain in the lower part of the back. At times the pain passes downward into the leg. This is known as sciatica.

At other times, a part of the disk herniates or ruptures. The type of injury which has occurred to the disk will determine to some extent the type of symptoms that develop. For example, according to Dr. James H. Young of Australia, a herniation of the disk will cause compression or pressure symptoms. When this happens it will be found that the spine bends away from the affected side.

Stands and Bends
If a person stands up and bends forward the pain is made worse, while if he is seated and bends forward the pain becomes less. Bending backward or toward the affected side increases the pain.

As a result of bending or lifting too heavy an object, rupture of the disk may occur. This causes symptoms called the stretch syndrome. In such cases, bending over while standing makes the pain worse as does bending over while sitting down. However, bending backward does not cause pain.

Sometimes there may be degeneration or wasting of one of the disks. In such cases bending over while standing makes the pain worse but bending backward or bending forward when sitting down is painless.

In order to tell when injury to the intervertebral disks has occurred, an X-ray of the spine is taken. An examination to determine if there is tenderness along the spine or to find if the vertebrae or small bones in the spine move too freely will also help in the diagnosis.

In the case of a hernia of a disk, surgical repair of the disk is usually necessary. Now and then, the part of the disk which has gotten out of position may go back in place by itself.

Tearing of the disk is treated by using a spinal brace to keep the parts immovable. However, in some cases the tearing of the disk may be so extensive that an operation is required.

When there is degeneration or wasting, the wearing of a cast or brace for awhile may relieve the symptoms. If this fails, an operation is done in which the vertebrae between which the disk is located are ankylotized, that is, fixed together so that they are not movable.

When pain in the back and sciatica occur, a careful study, including X-rays of the spine, should be carried out to determine if damage to the intervertebral disks may not be responsible.

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

"WHAT IS THIS, about the Ingalls woman getting herself murdered in my room?" Neal opened the long distance call without a preamble. "A charming surprise, I must say! Here I expect a few more good write-ups in the afternoon papers and instead they are full of her murder! They call it a crime of passion. If that isn't a laugh! Passion—and that renovated old harpy! How's my room? Did she mess it all up?"

"Your room is unharmed and I wish you'd speak with more kindness of the newly dead," I said coldly.

"Aw, don't make me sick! If the old fool weren't already dead I could kill her for ruining my opening! How would you like it if someone spoiled your great evening for you?"

"I didn't. Even if it was only an afternoon reception," I assured her pointedly. "By the way, the police are listening in."

"She gasped audibly, and then reproached me, at least half an octave lower in the scale. 'Darling! You might have mentioned that sooner! I wouldn't have let my poor nerves carry me away so badly if I realized we weren't—just we two! But you know how it is! This tragedy, right after the strain of my opening, was just a wee bit too much!'"

"Oh, I'm sure the police will understand—how it is," I told her dryly. "The gentlemen on the case are very understanding. Especially Dr. Berwick. You remember him, don't you?"

"Dr. Berwick? Is he connected with the police? Is he—listening?" Neal sounded genuinely interested, and a little excited.

"I am both," Hunt's deep voice suddenly came over the wire. "And now that you know it, I'd like you to give me some information, Miss Tarrant."

"But with pleasure! I'm entirely at your disposal! Anything you want to know—"

Neal gushed and gushed, in a voice that promised far more than plain information. Until Hunt cut her short and said matter-of-factly: "Thanks. But I only want to know if anyone from New York is with you in Boston."

"But naturally!" Neal didn't sound in the least squelched. "My whole company's from New York, and so is my maid Jane—via London, of course. And then, well, there are two very dear friends who wanted to make sure I'd have a shoulder to cry on in case of a flop. A throaty giggle. 'It wasn't a flop, though. They had to help me celebrate instead.'"

"Yes? And who are the two friends?" Hunt asked calmly.

"Oh—one is Deane Kennard. The author, you know. He's going to dramatize his new novel for me, sweet boy! And the other is Tonio Valente, the Brazilian—er—coffee king." "They traveled to Boston with you and have been there ever since?"

Again the throaty laugh. Playful and teasing, this time. "What do you think? They're sticking like glue," Neal confided.

So Deane had not been in New York.

I almost laughed, too, with the sheer relief of it. But I sobered at the thought that, in that case, the cigaret stubs had been a plant to make Deane look guilty and I'd simply have to confess my disposal of them to the inspector now, for fear of helping the murderer by my silence.

Actually, I became so absorbed in the "how" of my planned confession I don't remember if I said anything more to Neal, or just hung up on her. I only know I walked back into the living room at the exact moment Hunt emerged from the hallway to Neal's room—his listening post apparently—and that all my good resolutions were forgotten when I heard what he said to Inspector Barry, who was sitting on his spine in the low chair beside the sitting room extension.

"Did you hear Miss Tarrant mention the names of the two men who are with her? Well, one of them was 'Margot Ingalls' target when she made good her threat about cutting her erstwhile hearthrob dead in public. She snubbed him, and how! Right here in this room at Jane's reception and—I must say I was surprised to hear he was in Boston yesterday."

The implication was so clear it made me feel cold—and furious besides.

"That doesn't mean a thing after the way she talked to me later in the evening, about throwing stones at one person and hitting another," I broke in angrily, and then described the scene and the talk to the attentive inspector as graphically as I could.

"I see. You think she had someone else in mind when she was rude to you—er—client," he thought out loud when I had finished. "It's possible, but not probable. Who was next in line to greet her?"

"You mean behind Deane? I don't know," I told him. "I only remember my brother-in-law and Hunt Berwick came from the dining room a moment later. And it may interest you to hear she snubbed Hunt, too, if not quite so insultingly. He reminded her of a crossing on the same boat, some time before the war. And she had forgotten him."

The inspector grinned at Hunt, and Hunt grinned back: "Jane's right. She had. Perhaps I am your man and the case is solved."

The inspector's smile disappeared. "Wish it was as simple as that," he said gloomily. "But the way things are shaping up we'll have a devil of a time cracking it. Give me a professional criminal every time! Society murderers are a pain in the neck. No finger prints on record, no accomplices to turn stool pigeons—nothing."

"But this man shouldn't be hard to catch at all," Claire objected. "According to the letters he'd been hanging out with Margot Ingalls for months. Well, someone must have seen him with her if he wasn't invisible."

Inspector Barry nodded. "It would seem so. But—his kind is sick."

And Hunt added: "Yes. And he must have had the whole scheme worked out in advance. The letters show it. No dates, no sender's address, no names. Looks as though it was his idea—or was the lady in the habit of being vague in her letters, Jane?"

"No. Very clear, and she always dated them," Claire answered for me. "To me that part isn't the greatest puzzle, though. Let's say she did omit dates and names to please him. Then, why didn't she use dates and names in the last letters. The ones she wrote after she was through with him?"

"Because she wasn't through," Hunt echoed my own conviction. "Look at the way she was dressed when he killed her. A woman doesn't take such pains with her appearance to meet a man—with whom she is through."

I don't know what Claire answered. For at that point the telephone rang again, and this time it was Dita.

Her voice sounded determinedly calm when she started, in a far different vein from Neal. "Jane, dear, are you all right? Dick told me everything, and I'm so worried about you! Believe me, I'd be with you this minute if it weren't for—you know what. Can't you come out? Won't the police let you?"

"Of course they'll let me," I lied cheerfully. "But I don't want to, darling. You have no idea how terribly interesting all this is. Dreadful, too, naturally. But, after all, Margot was Aunt Jane's friend and not mine—and the unpleasant part is over. What's left is just thrilling and exciting beyond words. Hunt Berwick's been assigned to me to assist Inspector Barry. Did Dick tell you? And the inspector is the nicest man. You simply must meet him."

"Oh, am I glad you're taking it so calmly!" Dita's sigh of relief filled my whole room. "Dick said you were 'cool as a cucumber,' but I wanted to hear it from you. Anyway, you'll come out soon and tell me all the things that aren't in the press, won't you?"

It was hard to say "no" without rousing her suspicions, and so I temporized. "I'll try, pet. But I'm not sure I can make it. There's so much work at the office and anything might develop here—"

But when she kept on begging and pleading I promised, keeping my fingers crossed: "Okay. I'll come out late in the week. With lots of news, I hope."

FAITH

WITH many voices raised in doubts and fears for the future, it was reassuring to hear what Frank Gervasi, foreign correspondent and Washington editor of Collier's Magazine, said in a public address recently. Instead of doubt and pessimism, he spoke in this fashion.

"There will be no civilization-destroying war, despite the many men of evil heart and evil tongue who are attempting to edge us into one. These prophets of doom are the faithless people who do not believe in the principles of democracy, who are afraid of progress and change. The great masses of people everywhere believe in democracy. The great lack of faith is at the top, among the men who currently have power and won't yield any of it. In this category are the reactionary generals and admirals, and a vast number of majors and colonels who used to be soda jerks. There is a conspiracy in the three great capitals of the world to force the failure of peace. It is in the pattern of faithlessness and old-fashioned power politics that is now being woven about international affairs."

He admits that Russia is grossly unreasonable in her demands, but "so are we and Britain." He finds a clutter of talk about "buffer states, power blocs, unilateral treaties," and so on, that he says became obsolete with the production of the atomic bomb. Russia he regards as "suspicious and frightened, not dangerous but afraid of us."

However this may be, it is well to think such things over calmly.

SAD FLAPJACK STORY

IT'S a bad year for sugar bush farmers. The early spring, so pleasant for other people in the maple tree country, has ruined the quality of the sap.

Geauga County, in Northeastern Ohio, had great plans for its first Maple Sugar Festival since before the war, but the farmers have had to call it off. The warm weather cut off the flow of early sap, so the trees are bearing only "bud sap," used primarily for curing tobacco. A survey made by Cornell University indicates that syrup from Northern New York State will be very scarce also.

What will happen to the pancake situation next winter, with both maple syrup and sugar for jam rare foods?

ARGENTINA SURPRISE

A surprising development has happened in connection with the first anniversary of President Roosevelt's death, on April 12. A memorial stamp in his honor has been issued by Argentina. Perhaps Peron, despite his victory, does not feel sure of himself, and would like to appease the United States.

With Jack Gaver Along Broadway

NEW YORK, April 9—No one need worry about a monument to composer Vincent Youmans, who died last Friday. He composed "Tea for Two."

Year in and year out, in both professional and amateur fields, there is no popular song of modern vintage that approaches it in times used. There isn't a dance band that doesn't have it in the catalogue; professional dancers use it many thousands of times annually; the many occasions on which you hear it played on the radio constitute only a drop in the bucket of its public use. The song is 22 years old now and never states no matter how often you hear it.

Youmans was the seventh prominent writer of popular songs to die within a little over five months. The others were Jimmy Monaco, Gus Edwards, Harry Pease, Jerome Kern, Harry Von Tilzer, and Lew Pollack. None of them will be forgotten so long as there is such a thing as popular music.

Like Youmans, most of Kern's great tunes came out of musical shows for which he composed the scores. In "Show Boat" alone he put enough great melodies to establish half a dozen reputations, and that was only one of dozens of productions for which he provided music.

Von Tilzer, who composed thousands of songs, is remembered for many which first attained popularity 40 and more years ago—"Wait Till the Sun Shines, Nellie," "A Bird in a Gilded Cage," "Please Go 'Way and Let Me Sleep," and "I Want a Girl Just Like the Girl Who Married Dear Old Dad."

The songs of Edwards also go back many years, but each year one establishes more firmly such tunes as "By the Light of the Silvery Moon," "Schooldays," and "Don't Cry Little Girl, Don't Cry." Pease had one song that will never grow old, "Peggy O'Neill." He also did "Ten Little Fingers and Ten Little Toes" and "The Pal that I Love the Gal I Love." Pollack, who turned out hun-

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, April 9—Everyone is saying the world crisis has passed. UNO is twiddling its thumbs until May 6, judging the Iran issue more or less settled. On its agenda are only two matters of organization. But . . .

Russia is known to be planning a regular army of 6,500,000 men or more after July 1. We are planning an army then of 1,550,000.

Russia is planning an air force of 1,200,000 or more in her army. We are planning an air force of 400,000.

Russia has inaugurated conscription which is to provide 1,500,000 of fresh manpower each year, with two years of service for regulars and five years in her army for specialized services. I have not heard an authoritative estimate of her planes, but we are to have 5,000 for one-third the number of men she contemplates, and if the same ratio of men to planes could be maintained by Russia, she would have 15,000 (she cannot provide herself anywhere near that number). Of her 6,500,000 or more men, fully 5,000,000 are supposed to be her own troops, the other 1,500,000 coming from her satellites.

Is the world crisis over?

If so, why does Russia need such an army and air force, three to five times greater than ours?

In the face of such figures, how can people like Senator Pepper arise and naively accuse the United States of kicking Russia around, or proposing to?

Great Britain has nothing formidable, a scattered army which will be about the size of China's July 1 or shortly thereafter, and China has far more planes than Britain, mostly ours. Britain will have about half our force in her home army, the others being Dominion troops. Measured in world military terms, she will be weaker than ever before in her history. The army expansion program of DeGaulle in France has been defeated by the Communists and France cannot be considered a world force.

Give China 1,000,000; Britain a little over 1,000,000; France around 400,000 and us 1,550,000 (with air) and Russia will have a force greater by 1,500,000 or more, than all the major nations combined. (These figures fill out the Balkans estimates of Soviet strength given you last Friday.)

The estimates of our army are based upon announced factors such as minimum occupation requirements, keeping bases, transportation lines, etc., and lastly—and perhaps least in consideration—maintaining home defenses. They do not contemplate war with anyone. What requirements the Soviet figures are based on, I do not know.

Yet it is evident in these realities the world crisis has not passed, and that the idling in UNO reflects simply the ignoring of problems of world peace greater than Iran. No peace treaties have been concluded for Italy and Austria. The peace for Germany and Asia is unsettled. But even if these diplomatic affairs are eventually adjusted, can there be a world confidence in peace with Russia maintaining such plans?

Peace cannot come unless or until Russia opens up, drops her isolationism, her censorship, and takes her footing on the same basis as other nations of the world. Her tremendous military program, coupled with her secrecy, cannot accomplish any result except world unrest, uncertainty and suspicion. Free inspection of limited armaments on the other hand would establish a justifiable feeling of international security.

MAKE SURE OF IT

GETTING AN entry out of the dummy before its long suit is established is the telling factor in the defense against many a No Trump game. When that can be read as the crux of the situation, it pays to sacrifice your own high cards in order to accomplish the necessary result. Leading a well-positioned king from third-hand position right into the dummy's ace can then be worth more money to you than the single trick you seem to sacrifice thereby. Choosing some smaller card may mean that you throw away your one real opportunity to defeat the contract.

After that funny bidding, West opened the heart 4, which East won with the K. He studied the dummy and decided that the best defense was to try to kill off the club suit—in which he deduced South had some high cards—by removing the diamond A as a re-entree to the dummy. So far, so good. But then he, to achieve this aim, led the diamond 2. That scrapped any possible benefits from his thinking. South won the low diamond with the Q, while leaving the A intact. He scored the club A, K and Q, then led to the diamond A and cashed two more clubs. Then the spade finesse succeeded, giving him a total of nine tricks and game.

East remorsefully told West he led his small diamond to the second trick in the hope that West had the Q—a monstrous unlikelihood in view of the bidding—and that he had hoped to save his K for a trick-taker later on. If instead of the small diamond, he had led the K to the second trick, he could have knocked out that diamond A before South had a chance to clear out his own high clubs. That was the one thing on which the contract depended—getting the diamond A out of dummy before the declarer led his clubs. Doing it would have held the declarer to eight tricks.

Backache? Maybe Your Shock Absorbers Are Out of Order

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THE human body is intricately and marvelously made, which is, of course, one reason why it may develop so many ailments. From one point of view, its wondrous complexity and specialization of parts simply means that it has a lot of things to get out of kilter.

Suppose, for instance, there is some injury to its "shock absorbers," the little pieces of cartilage which lie between the small bones of the spine and act as cushions to protect against jarring.

These bits of cartilage, called intervertebral disks, are small, and they serve a most useful purpose, but if they are injured you are going to have trouble.

There are certain injuries to the intervertebral disks which, in turn, produce pain in the lower part of the back. At times the pain passes downward into the leg. This is known as sciatica.

At other times, a part of the disk herniates or ruptures. The type of injury which has occurred to the disk will determine to some extent the type of symptoms that develop. For example, according to Dr. James H. Young of Australia, a herniation of the disk will cause compression or pressure symptoms. When this happens it will be found that the spine bends away from the affected side.

Stands and Bends

If a person stands up and bends forward the pain is made worse, while if he is seated and bends forward the pain becomes less. Bending backward or toward the affected side increases the pain.

As a result of bending or lifting too heavy an object, rupture of the disk may occur. This causes symptoms called the stretch syndrome. In such cases, bending over while standing makes the pain worse as does bending over while sitting down. However, bending backward does not cause pain.

Sometimes there may be degeneration or wasting of one of the disks. In such cases bending over while standing makes the pain worse but bending backward or bending forward when sitting down is painless.

In order to tell when injury to the intervertebral disks has occurred, an X-ray of the spine is taken. An examination to determine if there is tenderness along the spine or to find if the vertebrae or small bones in the spine move too freely will also help in the diagnosis.

In the case of a hernia of a disk, surgical repair of the disk is usually necessary. Now and then, the part of the disk which has gotten out of position may go back in place by itself.

Tearing of the disk is treated by using a spinal brace to keep the parts immovable. However, in some cases the tearing of the disk may be so extensive that an operation is required.

When there is degeneration or wasting of the cartilage of a cast or brace for awhile may relieve the symptoms. If this fails, an operation is done in which the vertebrae between which the disk is located are ankylized, that is, fixed together so that they are not movable.

When pain in the back and sciatica occur, a careful study, including X-rays of the spine, should be carried out to determine if damage to the intervertebral disks may not be responsible.

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

"WHAT IS THIS, about the Ingalls woman getting herself murdered in my room?" Neal opened the long distance call without a preamble. "A charming surprise, I must say! Here I expect a few more good write-ups in the afternoon papers and instead they are full of her murder! They call it a crime of passion. If that isn't a laugh! Passion—and that renovated old happy! How's my room? Did she mess it all up?"

"Your room is unharmed and I wish you'd speak with more kindness of the newly dead," I said coldly.

"Aw, don't make me sick! If the old fool weren't already dead I could kill her for ruining my opening! How would you like it if someone spoiled your great evening for you?"

"I didn't. Even if it was only an afternoon reception," I assured her pointedly. "By the way, the police are listening in."

She gasped audibly, and then reproached me, at least half an octave lower in the scale. "Darling! You might have mentioned that sooner! I wouldn't have let my poor nerves carry me away so badly if I'd realized we weren't—just we two! But you know how it is? The tragedy, right after the strain of my opening, was just a wee bit too much!"

"Oh, I'm sure the police will understand—how it is," I told her dryly. "The gentlemen on the case are very understanding. Especially Dr. Berwick. You remember him, don't you?"

"Dr. Berwick? Is he connected with the police? Is he—listening?" Neal sounded genuinely interested, and a little excited.

"I am both," Hunt's deep voice suddenly came over the wire. "And now that you know it, I'd like you to give me some information, Miss Tarrant."

"But with pleasure! I'm entirely at your disposal! Anything you want to know—"

Neal gushed and gushed, in a voice that promised far more than plain information. Until Hunt cut her short and said matter-of-factly: "Thanks, but I only want to know if anyone from New York is with you in Boston."

"But naturally!" Neal didn't sound in the least quelled. "My whole company's from New York, and so is my maid Jones—via London, of course. And then, well, there are two very dear friends who wanted to make sure I'd have a shoulder to cry on in case of a flop. A throaty giggle. 'It wasn't a flop, though. They had to help me celebrate instead.'"

"Yes? And who are the two friends?" Hunt asked calmly.

"Oh—one is Deane Kennard. The author, you know. He's going to dramatize his new novel for me, sweet boy! And the other is Tonio Valente, the Brazilian—er—coffee

"They traveled to Boston with you and have been there ever since?"

Again the throaty laugh. Playful and teasing, this time. "What do you think? They're sticking like glue," Neal confided.

So Deane had not been in New York.

I almost laughed, too, with the sheer relief of it. But I sobered at the thought that, in that case, the cigarette stubs had been a plan to make Deane look guilty and I'd simply have to confess my disposal of them to the inspector now, for fear of helping the murderer by my silence.

Actually, I became so absorbed in the "how" of my planned confession I don't remember if I said anything more to Neal, or just hung up on her. I only know I walked back into the living room at the exact moment Hunt emerged from the hallway to Neal's room—his listening post apparently—and that all my good resolutions were forgotten when I heard what he said to Inspector Barry, who was sitting on his spine in the low chair beside the sitting room extension.

"Did you hear Miss Tarrant mention the names of the two men who were with her? Well, one of them was Margot Ingalls, or target when she made good her threat about cutting her erstwhile heartthrob dead in public. She snubbed him, and how! right here in this room at Jane's reception and—I must say I was surprised to hear he was in Boston yesterday."

The implication was so clear it made me feel cold—and furious besides.

"That doesn't mean a thing after the way she talked to me later in the evening, about throwing stones at one person and hitting another. I broke in angrily, and then described the scene and the talk to the attentive inspector as graphically as I could.

And it may interest you to hear she snubbed Hunt, too, if not quite so insultingly. He reminded her of a crossing on the same boat, some time before the war. And she had forgotten him."

The inspector grinned at Hunt, and Hunt grinned back: "Jane's right. She had. Perhaps I am your man and the case is solved."

Inspector Barry nodded. "It would seem so. But—his kind is alick."

And Hunt added: "Yes. And he must have had the whole scheme worked out in advance. The letters show it. No dates, no sender's address, no names. Looks as though it was his idea or—was the lady in the habit of being vague in her letters, Jane?"

"No. Very clear, and she always dated them," Claire answered for me. "To me that part isn't the greatest puzzle, though. Let's say she did omit dates and names to please him. Then, why didn't she use dates and names in the last letters. The ones she wrote after she was through with him?"

"Because she wasn't through," Hunt echoed my own conviction. "Look at the way she was dressed when he killed her. A woman doesn't take such pains with her appearance to meet a man—with whom she is through."

I don't know what Claire answered. For at that point the telephone rang again, and this time it was Dita.

Her voice sounded determinedly calm when she started, in a far different vein from Neal. "Jane, dear, are you all right? Dick told me everything and I'm so worried about you! Believe me, I'd be with you this minute if it weren't for you know what. Can't you come out? Won't the police let you?"

"Oh, am I glad you're taking it so calmly!" Dita's sigh of relief filled my whole room. "Dick said you were cool as a cucumber," but I favored to hear it from you. Anyway, you'll come out soon and tell me all the things that aren't in the papers, won't you?"

But when she kept on begging and pleading I promised, keeping my fingers crossed: "Okay. I'll come out late in the week. With lots of news, I hope."

NEWS Behind the NEWS

In view of this condition of affairs, it is plain enough our estimates of military requirements may be too small. Any proposal that we give Russia the atomic bomb, in addition to the prospective military advantages, is absurd, above all, our national state of mind is no longer alert to realities, but is already lapsing into theories of defensive security, which caused the past two wars to last twice as long as they would have lasted, had we been prepared to face reasonable prospects.

The greatest defect of American defense has always been our customary woeful deficiency in men and weapons inspired by our customary belief that the latest war was absolutely the last one, and, in any event, that we will have a year or so to get ready.

Oceans saved us from effects of our follies of the past, but science has now shrunk the oceans into ponds.

JOHN J. ANTHONY

"Unemployment is the biggest problem this country faces today," says John J. Anthony, noted counselor on human relations, who will begin his 17th year on the air Wednesday, when he broadcasts over the Mutual Network at 1:45 p. m., EST. "We must find jobs for the more than a million and a half discharged veterans who are unemployed, and for the countless thousands of former war workers who can't find work. It's a challenge which we must meet!" Anthony made his first broadcast over a now-defunct radio station in the Queens Borough of New York City on April 10, 1930. His audience then was only a handful of people. Today, he is heard on one of the largest commercial coast-to-coast networks, and his program reaches some three million listeners. In nearly two decades of continuous broadcasting, the basic format of Anthony's program is unchanged. For each broadcast he invites actual people to come to his studios to tell their problems in person. He estimates that so far he has given advice to more than 15,000 cases on the air, and that he has helped some 300,000 people solve their domestic and marital relations problems.

COFFIN ADVENTURE

When a stranger delivers a coffin "for the deceased Michael Waring," the intrepid Mike, better known as the Falcon, sets off on a grisly "Adventure of the Falcon," entitled (with apologies), "There's No Cure for Coffin," Tuesday, (8:30 to 9 p. m., EST) over Mutual, Mike's refusal to accept the six foot box is followed by a phone call from another stranger who suggests that perhaps his refusal was a little hasty, and sure enough, when the Falcon meets a famous Hungarian scientist working on a secret government project, he runs into several unpleasant incidents including an accidental electrocution, James Meighan plays the title role of the freelance detective—"always ready with a hand for oppressed men and an eye for repressed women."

(8 to 8:30 p. m., EST) over Mutual. This time it's the womanly intuition of Patsy, Nick's young assistant, that leads to the trail of a tricky killer. Patsy learns that what she saw wasn't what she should have seen, and backtracks to search for a hidden clue.

AMOS 'N' ANDY

The Kingfish receives several yards of imported tweed from a soldier friend, stationed in England, and as a result, Andy gets delusions of grandeur, in the Amos 'n' Andy broadcast Tuesday, at 9 p. m. The Kingfish, in a moment of financial disturbance, sells the tweed to Andy, who promptly begins to see himself as Harlem's best dressed man. The Delta Rhythm Boys provide the show's musical highlight, the new Pig Latin novelty, "The Iggy Song."

ATOMIC ENERGY

The marvels of atom energy and how in peace they will change the living standards of America and the world at large will be an exclusive feature on Ed Sullivan's broadcast, Tuesday, at 9 p. m., EST, on ABC. The syndicated columnist and commentator will have a modern Jules Verne story for his listeners and it's all based on scientific fact, for Sullivan went to the top authorities in the Navy Department in Washington for his information.

DATE WITH JUDY

"A Date With Judy" makes a straight swap with Uncle Sam's Army, in a pair of cast changes effective with the broadcast Tuesday, at 8:30 p. m. Tommy Cook takes over the Randolph role, succeeding Dix Davis, now in the Army. And Scott Elliott, out of khaki, resumes his role as Oogie Pringle. The story, "Father's Night of Rest," deals with Mr. Foster's secret plans for a duck hunt, and the family's not-so-secret plans which involve staying awake all night. Louise Erickson stars as Judy.

Pickaway Doctors To Attend Centennial Of Medical Group

NEW MEDICINES, TREATMENTS TO BE DISCUSSED

2,000 Physicians Expected To Join Observance By Medical Association

Pickaway County will be officially represented at a three-day series of meetings to be held at Columbus May 7 through 9, in celebration of the centennial anniversary of the founding of the Ohio State Medical Association.

Planning to attend as official delegates of the Pickaway County Medical Society are: Dr. E. S. Shane, Dr. A. D. Blackburn, Dr. D. V. Courtright and Dr. W. F. Heine, all of Circleville.

Their colleagues from all parts of Ohio are expected to be present. The state organization was formed May 14, 1846 in the old Neil House at Columbus.

The three-day assemblage will likely include more than 2,000 medical men. They will hear lectures on the latest developments in their field of endeavor by nationally known medical authorities. There will be panel discussions of up-to-the-minute procedures in diagnosis and treatment of human ills.

Concurrent with the meeting of the Ohio State Medical Association will be the annual sessions of the Ohio Society of Anesthetists, the Ohio State Radiological Society, the Ohio Society of Pathologists, and the Ohio Chapter of the American College of Chest Physicians.

Comprehensive exhibits will include the latest surgical equipment and pharmaceutical supplies, and historical exhibits depicting the advances in medicine during the past 100 years.

Among the guest speakers will be William H. Feldman, D. V. M., D. Sc., of the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., lecturing on the evidence of therapeutic effects of streptomycin in tuberculosis; Roy D. McClure, M. D., surgeon-in-chief of the Henry Ford Hospital, Detroit, the surgical treatment of bleeding peptic ulcer; Brig. Gen. William C. Menninger, M. C., A. U. S., Washington, D. C., the readjustment of the disabled veteran to civilian life; Carl V. Moore, M. D., Washington University School of Medicine, St. Louis, Mo., recent advances in the understanding and therapy of anemias; Walter Lincoln Palmer, M. D., University of Chicago, medical management of gastrointestinal disturbances; Stanley P. Reimann, M. D., director, Institute for Cancer Research, Lankenau Hospital, Philadelphia, Pa., present status of cancer research; and Homer F. Swift, M. D., Rockefeller Institute, New York City, relationship between rheumatic fever and hemolytic streptococcal infections.

Informal "quiz" sessions will be held, and the special sections of surgery, medicine, pediatrics, nervous and mental diseases, obstetrics and gynecology, and eye, ear, nose and throat, will convene.

Simultaneously with the meeting of the association the wives of the physicians will conduct the annual meeting of the Women's Auxiliary.

TRUCKER FINED ON CHARGE OF SHORT WEIGHT

Herbert Roe, 24, Portsmouth, was fined $25 and costs by Justice of the Peace Harold O. Eveland, Monday afternoon, because Roe's truck contained only seven tons of coal although a weigh-slip in his possession showed a 10-ton load.

The arrest was made by deputies from the office of Pickaway County Sheriff Charles Radcliff after Roe offered to sell "10 tons of West Virginia coal" to a Circleville resident for $60. After the cargo had been weighed Roe admitted he had sold three tons off the truck after getting the weigh-slip at Portsmouth.

Sheriff Radcliff warned that his deputies will check the weight of truck cargoes entering the county.

HEIFER WILL BE SENT TO EUROPE

Brethren Service Committee Directing Project To Help Suffering

A number of local people are interested in doing what they can to relieve suffering in Europe through the "Heifer Project." On Sunday afternoon a group visited the farm of A. J. Dunkle where a pedigree Guernsey heifer is being kept for this project. A brief service was held dedicating the heifer to the cause of helping to relieve human suffering in the name of Christ.

This particular heifer was purchased by Thurl Metzger for this project and is being boarded by Mr. Dunkle until ready for shipment. In the service Sunday Homer Reber, former owner of the calf, told something of the origin and high quality of Guernsey cattle after which the Rev. Lester E. Pike, pastor of the local Church of the Brethren, spoke briefly of the Heifer Project and its far reaching service and influence among the needy peoples of Europe. After the reading of a passage of scripture from Matthew 25:31-45 and prayer by Arthur Cupp the heifer was tagged for the Brethren Service Committee which is directing the Heifer Project.

The idea of Heifers For Relief was started a number of years ago by Dan West of Goshen, Ind., while he was directing relief work in Spain. He offered his idea to the American people and it has been enthusiastically received by many people as a means of saving war victims from starvation and also as a means of building friendship and brotherhood between the people of the war stricken countries and our own nation. Protestants, Catholics and school organizations are supporting this project.

The diet in many countries is on a starvation level and poorly balanced. Thousands of dairy cattle were war victims and so protein foods, including milk, is almost entirely lacking. To give a family a family cow is doing more than giving temporary relief. It is helping more permanently and is giving hope and future security to thousands of hungry, discouraged people.

When these heifers are shipped they are accompanied by Christian men from America and given free of charge to those in need. The recipients are expected to share the gift by passing along new heifer calves and any extra milk. More than 1,500 heifers have already been shipped.

SCIENCE ENDS EXPLANATION OF SUN SPOT TRICK

WASHINGTON, April 9—Science found a new explanation today for the tricks that sun spots play on radio communications.

Three scientists at the Carnegie Institution of Washington announced the discovery of electrically-charged gasses which speed from the sun into the earth's atmosphere and seriously disturb the travel of radio waves.

The gasses originate in or near sun spots and race toward the ionosphere, the upper layer of the earth's atmosphere, at about a mile-a-second clip. The ionosphere then undergoes marked changes which result in the fading or disappearance of radio signals.

The scientists were H. W. Wells, J. W. Matis and D. E. George, using new techniques for observing phenomena in the atmosphere, they made their investigations at the ionospheric laboratory at Ken-

Pickaway Doctors To Attend Centennial Of Medical Group

NEW MEDICINES, TREATMENTS TO BE DISCUSSED

2,000 Physicians Expected To Join Observance By Medical Association

Pickaway County will be officially represented at a three-day series of meetings to be held at Columbus May 7 through 9, in celebration of the centennial anniversary of the founding of the Ohio State Medical Association.

Planning to attend as official delegates of the Pickaway County Medical Society are: Dr. E. S. Shane, Dr. A. D. Blackburn, Dr. D. V. Courtright and Dr. W. F. Heine, all of Circleville.

Their colleagues from all parts of Ohio are expected to be present. The state organization was formed May 14, 1846 in the old Neil House at Columbus.

The three-day assemblage will likely include more than 2,000 medical men. They will hear lectures on the latest developments in their field of endeavor by nationally known medical authorities. There will be panel discussions of up-to-the-minute procedures in diagnosis and treatment of human ills.

Concurrent with the meeting of the Ohio State Medical Association will be the annual sessions of the Ohio Society of Anesthetists, the Ohio State Radiological Society, the Ohio Society of Pathologists, and the Ohio Chapter of the American College of Chest Physicians.

Comprehensive exhibits will include the latest surgical equipment and pharmaceutical supplies, and historical exhibits depicting the advances in medicine during the past 100 years.

Among the guest speakers will be William H. Feldman, D. V. M., D. Sc., of the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., lecturing on the evidence of therapeutic effects of streptomycin in tuberculosis; Roy D. McClure, M. D., surgeon-in-chief of the Henry Ford Hospital, Detroit, the surgical treatment of bleeding peptic ulcer; Brig. Gen. William C. Menninger, M. C., A. U. S., Washington, D. C., the readjustment of the disabled veteran to civilian life; Carl V. Moore, M. D., Washington University School of Medicine, St. Louis, Mo., recent advances in the understanding and therapy of anemias; Walter Lincoln Palmer, M. D., University of Chicago, medical management of gastrointestinal disturbances; Stanley P. Reimann, M. D., director, Institute for Cancer Research, Lankenau Hospital, Philadelphia, Pa., present status of cancer research; and Homer F. Swift, M. D., Rockefeller Institute, New York City, relationship between rheumatic fever and hemolytic streptococcal infections.

Informal "quiz" sessions will be held, and the special sections of surgery, medicine, pediatrics, nervous and mental diseases, obstetrics and gynecology, and eye, ear, nose and throat, will convene.

Simultaneously with the meeting of the association the wives of the physicians will conduct the annual meeting of the Women's Auxiliary.

TRUCKER FINED ON CHARGE OF SHORT WEIGHT

Herbert Roe, 24, Portsmouth, was fined $25 and costs by Justice of the Peace Harold O. Eveland, Monday afternoon, because Roe's truck contained only seven tons of coal although a weigh-slip in his possession showed a 10-ton load.

The arrest was made by deputies from the office of Pickaway County Sheriff Charles Radcliff after Roe offered to sell "10 tons of West Virginia coal" to a Circleville resident for $60. After the cargo had been weighed Roe admitted he had sold three tons off the truck after getting the weigh-slip at Portsmouth.

Sheriff Radcliff warned that his deputies will check the weight of truck cargoes entering the county.

HEIFER WILL BE SENT TO EUROPE

Brethren Service Committee Directing Project To Help Suffering

A number of local people are interested in doing what they can to relieve suffering in Europe through the "Heifer Project." On Sunday afternoon a group visited the farm of A. J. Dunkle where a pedigree Guernsey heifer is being kept for this project. A brief service was held dedicating the heifer to the cause of helping to relieve human suffering in the name of Christ.

This particular heifer was purchased by Thurl Metzger for this project and is being boarded by Mr. Dunkle until ready for shipment. In the service Sunday Homer Reber, former owner of the calf, told something of the origin and high quality of Guernsey cattle after which the Rev. Lester E. Fike, pastor of the local Church of the Brethren, spoke briefly of the Heifer Project and its far reaching service and influence among the needy peoples of Europe. After the reading of a passage of scripture from Matthew 25:31-45 and prayer by Arthur Cupp the heifer was tagged for the Brethren Service Committee which is directing the Heifer Project.

The idea of Heifers For Relief was started a number of years ago by Dan West of Goshen, Ind., while he was directing relief work in Spain. He offered his idea to the American people and it has been enthusiastically received by many people as a means of saving war victims from starvation and also as a means of building friendship and brotherhood between the people of the war stricken countries and our own nation. Protestants, Catholics and school organizations are supporting this project.

The diet in many countries is on a starvation level and poorly balanced. Thousands of dairy cattle were war victims and so protein foods, including milk, is almost entirely lacking. To give a family a family cow is doing more than giving temporary relief. It is helping more permanently and is giving hope and future security to thousands of hungry, discouraged people.

When these heifers are shipped they are accompanied by Christian men from America and given free of charge to those in need. The recipients are expected to share the gift by passing along new heifer calves and any extra milk. More than 1,500 heifers have already been shipped.

SCIENCE ENDS EXPLANATION OF SUN SPOT TRICK

WASHINGTON, April 9—Science found a new explanation today for the tricks that sun spots play on radio communications.

Three scientists at the Carnegie Institution of Washington announced the discovery of electrically-charged gasses which speed from the sun into the earth's atmosphere and seriously disturb the travel of radio waves.

The gasses originate in or near sun spots and race toward the ionosphere, the upper layer of the earth's atmosphere, at about a mile-a-second clip. The ionosphere then undergoes marked changes which result in the fading or disappearance of radio signals.

The scientists were H. W. Wells, J. W. Matis and D. E. George, using new techniques for observing phenomena in the atmosphere, they made their investigations at the ionospheric laboratory at Ken-
